PREAMBLE

Recalling that the objectives of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) are to conserve biodiversity and contribute to its sustainable use by ensuring that no species of wild fauna and flora becomes or remains subject to unsustainable exploitation through international trade, that specimens pass through any formalities required for trade with a minimum of delay and that living specimens are so prepared and shipped as to minimize the risk of injury, damage to health or cruel treatment;

Recognising that, according to the preamble of the Convention, international cooperation is essential for the protection of certain species of wild fauna and flora against over-exploitation through international trade;

Further recalling that Objective 3.3 of the CITES Strategic Vision: 2008-2020, adopted at the 16th meeting of the Conference of the Parties to CITES (Bangkok, 2013), provides that cooperation with relevant international environmental, trade and development organizations is enhanced;

Noting that Resolution Conf. 10.21 (Rev. CoP16) on Transport of live specimens of the Conference of the Parties to CITES recommends that a relationship with the World Animal Health Organisation (OIE) be developed and that Part XII of Resolution Conf. 12.3 (Rev. CoP16) on Permits and certificates provides guidance on the use of simplified procedures to issue permits and certificates for inter alia biological samples;

Recognising that the mandate of the OIE is to improve animal health including zoonoses, veterinary public health and animal welfare worldwide, that the OIE is responsible for transparency of the global animal disease situation, and that the OIE is recognized by the World Trade Organization as a reference organization for international standards concerning the sanitary safety of international trade of animals and products of animal origin;

Recognising that the OIE's 6th strategic plan (2016-2020) identifies as a major consideration, the importance of influencing policy design, education, research and governance on worldwide issues, which include the protection of endangered animal species and the concern regarding the biodiversity loss, and recognizing that the OIE is mandated by its Member Countries to deal with all health problems relating to wild animals, whether in the wild or in captivity;

Recognising accordingly the need for cooperation between the OIE and the CITES Secretariat within the fields of their competence;
